LAYERS OF A RURAL LANDSCAPE: DINAH WORMAN

January 12 - 25, 2015

Scottsdale, AZ.... Trailside Galleries is pleased to present its first showcase of works by New Mexico artist Dinah Worman. The show will be on exhibit at the gallery from January 12 through January 25.

Worman's landscape paintings are instantly recognizable for their clarity and depth. Light is everywhere. It filters through the trees and streams, between the clouds. She is able to retain this vitality because she is continually renewing her vision. She notes, "I work to press beyond method and into a flow of creative instinct; using pastel, oil, acrylic or printmaking to express myself with unusual compositions and expanding vision." Worman's work ranges from representational to imaginative variations taken from a creative viewpoint of man and his relationship to the landscape.

Worman has earned the designation of Master Pastellist from the Pastel Society of America. She has been featured in articles in several newspapers, magazines including Southwest Art, The Pastel Journal and The Artists Magazine as well as having a public installation chosen for display in Taos, NM.
